II. Internship Policy

As the University aims primarily to develop the knowledge and personality of the student, following up on his training which applies the theoretical knowledge he has acquired is of paramount importance. The second primary objective of the Office is to provide an integrated academic and administrative care during field training given to the student who is taking his first steps in the job market. Such training will give the student a unique opportunity to apply, implement and execute a variety of skills, theories and concepts he has acquired during his study. Training will also enable the student to shoulder his professional and specialized responsibilities through contact with the work environment. In addition, the completion of training is part of graduation requirements.

The University receives students who are absorbed in the industrial sector and government agencies during their training. It also coordinates with foreign institutions and universities in order to secure training opportunities for its own students. Such exchange increases the student's self-confidence and independence.
